There are no proposals from the board and the members concerning rule changings.

Some general remarks:

There is a tendency in sailmaking to go closer to the limits. So, depending on the shrinking of the clothes, some of those may become illegal in the future.

Actually the the main use of the painter is as follows. It is fixed at the mast, then about one or two meters in front is a little slope for attaching the painter of the boat behind. Nice and comfortable for towing, but in case of danger this point is out of reach of the sailor to untie the painter.
